How much power does a portable power station need? For basic emergency use (lights, phone charging, small medical devices), a 300Wh to 500Wh station is sufficient. To run larger appliances like a fridge or microwave, go for 1000Wh or more. Can I use a portable power station while it's charging? Yes. Why should you buy a portable power station? Bring big backup power with you with these expert-recommended portable power stations, which can store enough power to charge electronics, appliances, and more. How do I know if a portable power station is good? Check the output wattage and battery capacity to see what a portable power station is capable of. The Westinghouse iGen160s is a basic little power station capable of keeping your electronics charged during a brief power outage or camping trip. I like that it has a flashlight (perfect for getting set up in the dark when the power is out). How do I choose a portable power station? Here are the all the key factors you'll want to look at when deciding on a portable power station. Size: Portable power stations come in a wide array of sizes and capacities, from the small and compact EcoFlow River 3, to the more capacious Anker Solix F3800, which stretches the limits of the word "portable," despite coming with wheels. What is the best portable power station for home backup? For those who need reliable power without the bulk, the Anker SOLIX C1000 delivers a surprising punch in a small package. It's easily one of the best lightweight portable power stations for home backup and is especially suited for apartments, travel trailers, or short-term outages. How long does a portable power station last? A portable power station's lifespan depends on the type of battery inside. Most new portable power stations, including all the models we recommend here, feature LiFePO4 battery technology, which lasts far longer than older lithium-ion technology. How much more? LiFePo4 power stations will last for more than 3,000 charge cycles, or about 10 years.
