Vatican solar farm will make it the world's first carbon-neutral state. Italy has agreed to a Vatican plan to turn a 430-hectare (1,000-acre) plot of land north of Rome into a vast solar farm that will generate enough electricity to meet the needs of Vatican City. Pope Francis orders construction of agrivoltaic plant for the Vatican. With the Apostolic Letter "Fratello sole," issued motu proprio, Pope Francis provides for the construction of an agrivoltaic plant in the extraterritorial zone of Santa Maria in Galeria, where Vatican Radio is located. Pope Francis unveils plan for Vatican to go solar. Pope Francis has announced measures to transition Vatican City to using solar energy as its main source of electricity, as outlined in his latest motu proprio titled "Fratello Sole, or "Brother Vatican City Is Now Powered By Solar." To model what this could look like, he announced that solar panels would be installed on a Vatican-owned property outside Rome, and the power generated from that could power the Vatican. The Vatican will become the first country in the world to produce its own energy. The project aims to meet the full energy needs of both the Vatican State and Vatican Radio using solar technology integrated with agricultural activity. Vatican solar farm achieves world's first carbon-neutral state. The Vatican is set to become the world's first carbon-neutral state through a groundbreaking initiative that involves transforming a 1,000-acre field north of Rome into a solar power plant to supply the Vatican's electricity needs. He did so with the apostolic letter in the form of Motu proprio. Pope Francis launches project to get Vatican to run solely on solar power. The Vatican has been seeking to drastically reduce its environmental impact by adopting more renewable energy sources, pursuing a goal of zero emissions by 2050 and assembling a net-zero emissions strategy. The Vatican goes green: Pope announces new solar plant. Pope Francis has renewables on his mind as he says he wants Vatican City to run on solar power. To achieve his aim, solar panels will be installed on a Vatican-owned property. Vatican solar farm will make it the world's first carbon-neutral state.
